Our Cuisine

Situated in one of the 18th century mansions that make up the hotel with its neo-classical façade, Mudéjar-style courtyard, ornate wood ceilings and classical smell of orange blossom, the restaurants' locations and characteristics provide them with the perfect atmosphere.

The Amistad is located in the interior of the building and 'El Jardín de Petra' is a small and romantic exterior courtyard for you to enjoy during spring and summertime.

After working in several Michelin star restaurants, Periko Ortega, head chef for both the Recomiendo as well as El Jardín de Petra, prepares an original cuisine based on fresh produce, with deep influences from traditional Andalusian cuisine.

The cold garlic and almond soup with coconut, candied fruit, and herring roe, the foie gras with quince, or the "Zuheros" cheese with layered orange are just a sample of the culinary trends that, combining Andalusian cuisine and imagination, create truly spectacular combinations.

The kitchen staff, recognized regionally, nationally, and throughout Europe, makes sure to incorporate the newest techniques and give the diner a unique culinary experience, combining new textures, tastes, and combinations. An example of this is the "torrija" (bread fried in batter with honey or sugar and wine) soaked in fresh cream and served with wheat with milk and apple tart ice-cream. The wine list, without being overly extensive, is composed of the best wines of the region as well as the latest wines from the market.

Daily tasting menus are offered. Careful selection of mineral waters, teas, coffees, cigars, and oils.
